This Week in Our World...

This week the focus of 'Our World' is the third episode of the World's Largest Lesson.

During the Autumn and Spring Terms, as part of our continuing Rights Respecting work, we watched the first and second episodes of the World's Largest Lesson where we learnt about Global Goals for Sustainable Development.

World's Largest Lesson

What's the background?

In 2015, leaders from 193 member states of the United Nations, met to discuss the world's problems and decide on a plan to tackle them. They named this plan the 17 Sustainable Development Goals (commonly known as the Global Goals). The three big aims of the Global Goals are that we fight inequality and injustice, end extreme poverty and tackle climate change.

The Global Goals are the most ambitious agreement for sustainable development that world leaders have ever made. These goals have the power to end poverty, fight inequality and address the urgency of climate change. Guided by the goals, it is now up to all of us, governments, businesses, the general public, teachers and children like you to work together to build a better future for everyone.
